WE'RE DITCHING PLASTIC SLEEVES

Sleeves off this summer

OVER THE SUMMER WE'RE TRIALLING NEW PACKAGING

Living somewhere as beautiful and fragile as the Isles of Scilly naturally makes us aware of local environmental issues, but the BBC's inspirational Blue Planet series widened our horizons and made us question our use of plastic packaging.

This wasn't a new idea. A few years ago we investigated alternatives but were frustrated by the questionable environmental credentials of biodegradable plastics.

The simplest plan is often the best and credit for our new packaging goes to Neil, our Production Manager.

We're not making unrealistic claims to be 'plastic free'. The flower food sachet is plastic to protect the powder from moisture (and we would have a job persuading our pickers to part with their plastic wellies), but we're committed to reducing our use of unnecessary plastics.

Our pinks help to win gold at the Chelsea Flower Show

Over the years, we've been invited to get involved with the famous Chelsea Flower Show in various ways, but have never felt able to say 'yes'. The big problem is timing. As we don't use any artificial light or heat, mid May is just a little early for us to guarantee an abundance of scented pinks. But this year we teamed up with a bunch of other growers through 'Flowers from the Farm', who created a gold-medal-winning display showcasing the beautiful variety of flowers that British growers produce.

WHY CHOOSE BRITISH FLOWERS?

A lot of British growers specialise in scented flowers – something that's particularly true of Scilly Flowers!

- Fewer flower miles = longer vase life.
- Great value for money - you're not paying for all those flower miles, and with our scented pinks and narcissi the flowers are coming direct from the field.
- Flowers that are naturally in season are of the best quality.
